

Center for Gender Studies

The Center for Gender Studies was started in October 1997 with the support from The John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation. It aims at teaching, researching and preparing conditions for the academic discourse of gender theory and gender problems in post-Soviet society. In 2000-2001 Center for Gender Studies launched the first master's program on Gender Studies in the former Soviet Union. In July 2001 the first graduates of the MA Program at the EHU received master's degrees.

The Center has organized a number of international conferences and seminars, such as a regional (Eastern/Central Europe) student scientific conference in gender studies, and an international conference "Writing Women's History and History of Gender in Countries in Transition" jointly organized by the CEU Program on Gender and Culture (Budapest) and Institutum Studiorum Humanitatis (Ljubjana).

Center for Economic and Social Research

The Center for Economic and Social Research was set up in 1996 as a scientific and research unit at the European Humanities University.

The Center aims at conducting fundamental and applied scientific research on economic, social, and political processes in Belarus; comparative analysis of the transformation process in European countries, economic and social consequences of the EU's enlargement for the non-accession countries (Belarus, Moldova, Russia, Ukraine).

The Center focuses its research on the problems of monetary policy, reform of the banking sector, and the development of labor markets.

Center for Philosophical Anthropology – Topos

The Topos Center was established at the EHU in 1996 through the initiative of young scholars, undergraduate and post-graduate students of higher education institutions in Minsk. The Center conducts research in the field of philosophical anthropology and philosophy of culture. It also holds a research seminar, regularly arranges international scientific conferences, and promotes scholarly publications in this field.

Since 2000 the Center has been publishing the philosophical journal Topos.
